Improving Professional Collaboration

➤ Executive summary

Developing a replacement for a successful partnership involving 20 local authorities and up to 1100 people working collaboratively is not easy, but that is exactly what the MHA and AECOM Waterman team had to do.

The MHA Professional Partnership 2(PSP2) started in April 2015 and through a combination of strong leadership, performance management, collocation and detailed business planning, is already looking to exceed some of the previous partnership's outcomes.

The setting of clear objectives early in the process and collaborative behaviour by all partners enabled the first year of the project to be a total success.
